Geocaching etiquette

We like to keep things fun for everyone, so we have a few rules we encourage everyone to follow.

- Sign both the logbook and log your find online to get your smiley. Geocache owners love reading about your experience.
- Be proud of Did not find (DNF) logs. They alert others that the cache may be more difficult to find than anticipated or may even be missing. DNF logs also inform the cache owner they may need to check on their container.

- If you take a trinket from the geocache, leave something of equal or greater value, making sure it's family friendly. Don't place food or scented items as these attract animals.
- Be mindful of non-geocaching onlookers (muggles). Curious people have been known to take or damage geocaches.
- Make sure you don't accidentally venture on to someone's private property. Caches won't require you to trespass.

- Leave the geocache area better than how you found it. Try not to disrupt local wildlife and pack any trash you see.
- If you find a problematic cache, please contact the owner directly or email us.
